DECLARING RACISM A PUBLIC HEALTH CRISIS IN CONNECTICUT

One of the greatest barriers to achieving health equity is the historical and contemporary relationship between racism and health. Declaring Racism a Public Health Crisis offers a clear path to intentionally acknowledging and addressing disparities and inequities.

2020-2021

In 2020, Health Equity Solutions began a petition demanding an intentional anti-racist focus in policymaking in the state of Connecticut. It gained more than 1,000 signatures from residents across 130+ towns in CT.

Soon after, HES started to engage with local residents to declare racism a public health crisis in CT municipalities. Thanks to the work of residents and grassroots organizations, 22 towns/cities and the Mashantucket Pequot Tribal Nation passed resolutions.

To support these efforts, HES amplified our social media presence and provided CT residents and leaders (local & state) with tools such as template emails, talking points, guidance on reaching out to elected officials, and next steps for towns and cities after a declaration has been made.

A BIG WIN FOR CT!

In 2021, the Connecticut General Assembly passed a bill declaring racism a public health crisis for the state of Connecticut.

This bill, now P.A. 21-35, also created the Commission on Racial Equity in Public Health. The Commission will create and implement a strategic plan to name and address goals for achieving health equity in Connecticut.
In the fall of 2021, HES reached out to the 22 towns that declared racism a public health crisis to learn more about the resolutions passed in these towns, the progress they’ve made, and the challenges they’ve faced in putting the resolution into action.

Quotes

We were influenced by:
“Momentum built by HES, New Haven REACH Coalition advocacy to initiate this declaration.”
“A shooting that involved a State Police Officer and a young Black man from another town.”

“Improve the quality of the data our city collects and the analysis of that data, as it is not enough to assume that an initiative is producing its intended outcome, qualitative and quantitative data should be used to assess inequities in impact and continuously improve.”

“There is a group of people, loud people, who do not feel this is an issue at all.”

“Since submitting the report of recommendations, there has been little action and next steps are unclear, despite advocacy efforts to push for next steps.”

“A local coalition will likely work on related initiatives outlined in the initial set of recommendations.”

“Get people to tell their stories publicly and do not give up.”

Implementing Equity in CT

Check out the “Racial Equity - Getting the Results Guide” by the Government Alliance on Race and Equity. It is a step by step guide for implementing racial equity at the local level.

HES recognizes that this is long-term work and will continue to share tools and work with the Commission on Racial Equity in Public Health to identify and achieve health equity goals for CT. Reach out to share your thoughts: Info@hesct.org
