

HEALTH CARE HEALTH CARE COSTS MEDICAID

In the 10 states that didn't expand Medicaid, 1.6M can't afford health insurance

The majority of residents in this coverage gap are people of color, an analysis found.

BY: SHALINA CHATLANI - JULY 19, 2024 5:00 AM

A Medicaid office employee works on reports at Montefiore Medical Center in New York. Nearly 1 of every 5 uninsured working-age adults across the 10 states that have not expanded Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act are stuck in a health care insurance limbo known as a “coverage gap.” Julie Jacobson/The Associated Press

Nearly 1 of every 5 uninsured working-age adults across the 10 states that have not expanded Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act are, according to a new analysis, stuck in a health care limbo known as a “coverage gap.” That means they earn too much money